Great content means little if your site isn't crawlable, structured, or fast. The experts on this list merge technical rigor with automation, analytics, and scalable systems—showing exactly how modern SEO gets executed in the wild. Follow their work to see the playbooks that turn audits into action and experiments into compounding gains.

These are the industry's best operators, thinkers, and educators—people who prove results beat opinions. They build frameworks, optimize workflows, and teach teams how to ship SEO that actually moves the needle. Whether you're building a brand, scaling an agency, or mastering the craft, their approaches will sharpen your strategy and execution. As we've been building the Greek SEO Community and organizing events like the SEO Athens Summit, these are the global voices that consistently deliver insights worth following—experts whose frameworks translate across markets and languages.

SEO still wins because it builds trust and compounds over time. The leaders here use data, automation, and tested frameworks to drive predictable growth—turning rankings into leads and leads into revenue. From lead generation to workflow automation, they're defining how brands scale online, and following them gives you a front-row seat to what works now. Several of these experts have shared their knowledge with our community directly, and their strategies apply just as effectively to Greek businesses competing in local and international markets.

1. Thomas Vavougios

With 8 years of dedicated SEO expertise and a total of 10+ years in digital marketing, Thomas is considered as one of the top SEO Experts in Greece and Cyprus.
Originally coming from Athens, Greece, he is a highly driven SEO executive renowned for significantly boosting organic international traffic and lead conversion for global brands across various sectors. His career has spanned three different countries, endowing me with a broad perspective and deep insights into SEO practices.

Throughout his career, he has successfully established SEO operations from the ground up for multiple organizations, building comprehensive SEO departments by implementing strategic frameworks, optimizing workflows, and developing cross-functional training programs. His expertise extends to coaching and upskilling diverse teams—including content managers, Product Owners, technical specialists, and marketing professionals—ensuring seamless integration of SEO best practices across all organizational levels.

He is also the founder of the most active SEO group in Greece (https://greekseocommunity.gr), through which he organises SEO meetups and conferences in Greece. The SEO Athens Summit (https://seoathenssummit.gr) is one of the biggest local SEO conferences, where international SEO speakers like Kyle Roof, Craig Campbell and Ferry Kaszoni had the chance so far to present their case studies.
Also, he has participated as a speaker at local and international SEO conferences, as the Icon conference in Cyprus and the SEO Vibes conference in Greece.
Lately he held the role of the judge for different Search Awards, as the Global Search Awards and the UK Search Awards.rs.

At present, he spearheads the SEO initiatives for a rapidly expanding online company, strategically enhancing organic reach and facilitating conversion growth by constantly improving the content and solving crawling and indexing issues.

2. James Dooley

James Dooley is an entrepreneur who specializes in lead generation and digital marketing, building one of the largest digital real estate portfolios in the United Kingdom through SEO, AI automation, and data-led strategy. As the founder of PromoSEO and FatRank, he pioneered no-win-no-fee lead generation services that remove risk for businesses seeking predictable growth.

We have met plenty of times at international SEO conferences like the Chiang Mai SEO conference and in different mastermind courses in Cyprus and in other countries.

Known as an "Investorpreneur," Dooley actively invests in UK businesses with strong lead generation potential, applying his proven frameworks to scale operations. His approach centers on a simple but powerful philosophy: consistent, high-quality leads simplify every aspect of business growth—from sales to operations to strategic planning.

He is the author of Leads First: Everything Flows Downstream After Lead Generation, a book that teaches business owners how to build scalable systems through predictable lead flow. Dooley regularly shares advanced SEO strategies and business insights at jamesdooley.com and fatrank.com, providing actionable frameworks for entrepreneurs and agencies looking to drive measurable results through lead-first thinking.

3. Kasra Dash

Founder of The Masterminders and mySEO App, Kasra Dash has built a reputation as one of the world's leading SEO experts and a Scottish entrepreneur reshaping how elite marketers connect and learn.

Kasra created The Masterminders with a singular vision: to raise the standard of SEO events worldwide. After attending numerous industry conferences, he identified a clear gap between surface-level presentations and the actionable strategies top professionals actually needed. Determined to bridge that gap, he transformed The Masterminders into the premier SEO and marketing conference focused on real frameworks, proven systems, and elite networking opportunities.

I have watched many of Kasra's videos in Youtube, as he has many useful video guides with the best SEO advices.

Beyond conferences, Kasra founded mySEO App—a private, invite-only platform connecting verified SEOs, agencies, and trusted suppliers within the search industry. The platform serves as a collaboration hub where professionals share proven frameworks and build strategic partnerships. Recently recognized among the top 10 SEO experts globally, Kasra is known for his philosophy: "SEO is an art and Google is my canvas."

4. Kyle Roof

As the inventor and co-creator of PageOptimizer Pro, Kyle Roof pairs rigorous on-page testing with practitioner training as co-founder of Internet Marketing Gold and co-founder/Lead SEO at High Voltage SEO.

To demonstrate how Google responds to measurable inputs, he famously ranked a page written entirely in lorem ipsum and later replicated the experiment to validate the results under scrutiny. Most recently for the Greek SEO Community, he appeared as a featured speaker at SEO Athens Summit 2025 with a “Helpful Robots” session on current testing and which LLMs are best for SEO, bringing his test-led approach directly to local practitioners.

Widely regarded as a pioneer of SEO testing and myth-busting, he also holds a U.S. patent related to scientific SEO testing and continues to teach structured methodologies through IMG Courses and masterclasses

5. Craig Campbell

With more than two decades in SEO and digital marketing—and an audience of over one million subscribers on YouTube—Craig Campbell has become one of the world's most recognized educators and personalities in the SEO industry. Known for his no-nonsense teaching style and entertaining case studies, he's helped countless marketers and business owners understand complex strategies in a pragmatic, real-world way.

I’ve followed Craig’s journey for years and have always admired his blend of deep knowledge, humor, and storytelling—a style that makes his talks both insightful and memorable. That’s why it’s such an exciting milestone for the Greek SEO Community to welcome him to Greece for the very first time. As a guest of the community and Thomas Vavougios, Craig will join an event designed to connect global expertise with Greece’s fast-growing digital marketing scene.

During his talk, he’ll share some of his most creative and unconventional SEO campaigns—like registering himself as an actor on IMDb to earn a knowledge panel, or buying the domain of a former British MP for an experimental campaign. It’s the kind of innovative thinking that makes Craig’s presentations legendary, and his appearance marks one of the most anticipated international moments for Greek SEOs this year.

6. Scott Keever

Owner of Keever SEO and Reputation Pros, Scott Keever has built a reputation for combining technical search optimization with strategic brand protection. His agencies are recognized for helping businesses dominate search results while maintaining a positive digital presence. By blending SEO precision with reputation management expertise, Keever delivers comprehensive solutions that protect and amplify brand value across search engines.

7. Katarina Dahlin

As Senior Growth Hacker at WhitePress®, Katarina Dahlin leads research and development in link strategies and SEO while helping clients scale through link-building and international SEO frameworks. A Finnish entrepreneur working globally across Nordic markets—including Finland and Sweden—she has built expertise in B2B, B2C, and eCommerce optimization.

Katarina pioneered a method for optimizing thousands of eCommerce product descriptions using AI automation, transforming how businesses scale content production without sacrificing quality. Her work bridges technical SEO execution with strategic growth initiatives, making her a recognized voice in international search optimization and scalable content systems.

8. Szymon Slowik

Founder of takaoto.pro digital marketing agency, Szymon Slowik has built his reputation as an SEO consultant specializing in e-commerce, B2B, and industrial sectors. Based in Poland, he brings deep experience across Central and Eastern European markets and works with global brands to drive measurable business outcomes.

Unlike many SEO professionals focused on traffic volume and vanity metrics, Szymon emphasizes customer journey optimization and tangible business results. His approach connects search visibility directly to conversion paths and revenue growth, making him a sought-after international speaker who shares frameworks grounded in practical application. His work across diverse industries and markets gives him a unique perspective on how SEO strategy must adapt to different business models and regional search behaviors.

9. Gareth Hoyle

Founder of Marketing Signals, a UK-based agency specializing in AI-driven search marketing, Gareth Hoyle has built a reputation for combining automation with human expertise to deliver intelligent, scalable results. His agency is recognized for implementing sophisticated SEO and PPC strategies that leverage artificial intelligence without sacrificing the strategic thinking required for sustainable growth.

By blending machine learning capabilities with experienced marketing insight, Hoyle's approach represents the evolution of modern search marketing—where data-driven automation enhances rather than replaces human decision-making. This philosophy has positioned Marketing Signals as a leader in demonstrating how AI can amplify campaign performance while maintaining the nuanced understanding of audience behavior that separates effective marketing from generic tactics.

10. Russell Lobo

Through his dual ventures—RussLobo.com (a GEO/AEO agency for eCommerce brands) and WHLinks (an outreach-driven SEO link building agency)—Russell Lobo has positioned himself at the intersection of traditional search and AI-powered discovery. He specializes in helping eCommerce brands increase sales by ensuring visibility across emerging AI search platforms including Google AI Overviews, ChatGPT, Claude, and Gemini.

As generative AI reshapes how consumers discover and evaluate products, Lobo's expertise in Generative Engine Optimization (GEO) and Answer Engine Optimization (AEO) addresses a critical gap most SEO professionals are still figuring out. His approach combines traditional link building fundamentals with forward-looking optimization strategies designed specifically for AI-powered search experiences, making him a valuable resource for brands looking to stay visible as search behavior evolves beyond traditional Google results.

11. Yash Singh

Founder of HVAC10x, Yash Singh has built an agency laser-focused on helping HVAC businesses generate more leads, calls, and revenue through a proven local lead-generation system. His plug-and-play approach is specifically designed for HVAC companies, delivering consistent results without requiring complex advertising campaigns or website redesigns.

Singh is recognized for transforming underperforming HVAC businesses from low-call weeks into generating 40+ calls weekly through systematic local SEO and lead generation frameworks. By niching down exclusively in the HVAC sector, he developed industry-specific strategies that address the unique search behavior and conversion patterns of homeowners seeking heating and cooling services. His specialized focus demonstrates how vertical expertise in SEO can deliver dramatically better results than generic marketing approaches.

12. David Peranić

As Digital Strategist at Scoreminds, David Peranić leads performance marketing initiatives that combine SEO, Google Ads, and advanced analytics to drive measurable business outcomes. His data-driven approach to campaign optimization has scaled digital growth across multiple industries, establishing him as a strategic force in conversion-focused marketing.

Peranić's expertise lies in connecting technical execution with business metrics—ensuring that every optimization decision ties back to revenue impact and growth objectives. By blending search visibility strategies with paid media performance and analytical rigor, he delivers integrated campaigns that maximize ROI while building sustainable organic presence. His cross-channel perspective makes him particularly effective at identifying opportunities that single-discipline specialists often miss.

13. Kristján Már Ólafsson

Built on the foundation of over a decade as a solopreneur, Kristjan Mar Olafsson has mastered every facet of planning, building, ranking, and monetizing websites—giving him a holistic understanding that fuels his work as an SEO Strategist today. His philosophy centers on one non-negotiable principle: constant adaptation. This proactive mindset allows him to evolve from core SEO fundamentals to emerging disciplines like Generative Engine Optimization (GEO), staying ahead of algorithmic shifts and search behavior changes.

Olafsson's hands-on experience provides unique adaptability to tackle any vertical, including the highly competitive iGaming sector where he successfully manages campaigns across various international markets. His strategic skillset transcends linguistic and cultural barriers, proving that deep SEO fundamentals combined with adaptive thinking can drive results regardless of geography or industry complexity. This versatility—rooted in real-world experience rather than theory—makes him particularly effective at solving complex optimization challenges that require both technical precision and strategic creativity.

14. Dean Signori

Through UK WEB GEEKZ, Dean Signori has built a full-stack digital marketing agency that delivers SEO, lead generation, web design, and paid advertising solutions with a focus on measurable outcomes. His data-driven approach to strategy has positioned the agency as a trusted growth partner for UK businesses looking to scale through integrated digital marketing.

Signori's agency stands out by combining multiple disciplines under one roof—allowing for coordinated campaigns where SEO foundations support paid advertising efforts, web design enhances conversion rates, and lead generation systems connect directly to business revenue. This holistic approach ensures that every marketing channel reinforces the others, creating compounding results rather than siloed tactics. His commitment to data-driven decision-making means clients receive transparent reporting on what's working and continuous optimization based on performance metrics rather than assumptions.

15. Viktoria Altman

As founder and CEO of BSPE Legal Marketing, Viktoria Altman has established herself as one of the leading law firm digital marketing experts in the United States. Her agency specializes in helping legal practices scale through strategic SEO and digital marketing, with particular expertise in the unique challenges small and mid-sized law firms face when competing for visibility online.

Altman is the author of Small Law Firm Digital Marketing, a comprehensive guide that teaches legal practitioners how to grow their practices through search engine optimization and digital strategy. She shares ongoing insights through The Law Firm Accelerator Podcast, which has become a go-to resource for attorneys looking to modernize their marketing approach and drive measurable growth.

Beyond her agency work and content creation, Altman is a sought-after public speaker and educator in legal marketing circles. She has presented at prestigious venues including the New York City Bar Association and serves as a guest lecturer at Arizona State University's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law and National University's JFK School of Law. She also speaks at international SEO events like the SEO Mastery Summit in Saigon, bridging the gap between traditional legal marketing and cutting-edge digital strategies. Her work demonstrates how vertical specialization in SEO—combined with deep industry knowledge—can deliver transformative results for professional services firms.

16. Nestor Vazquez

With a focus on technical optimization and content strategy, Nestor Vazquez has built his reputation as an SEO consultant who helps businesses grow their organic visibility through systematic, results-driven approaches. He combines analytical precision with hands-on implementation, ensuring that strategic insights translate directly into actionable improvements rather than remaining theoretical recommendations.

Vazquez is recognized for delivering consistent search performance improvements by addressing both the technical foundation and content execution that drive rankings. His methodology balances the diagnostic work of identifying optimization opportunities with the practical implementation required to capture them—making him particularly valuable for businesses that need both strategic direction and execution support. This dual capability allows him to bridge the gap between identifying what needs to be done and actually getting it done, resulting in measurable organic growth for his clients.

17. Karl Hudson

Co-founder of Searcharoo, Karl Hudson leads a link-building and content marketing agency known for scalable, white-label solutions that agencies rely on worldwide. By standardizing delivery and quality at scale, Searcharoo has become a trusted partner for predictable backlink growth and content amplification.

18. Trifon Boyukliyski

With over fifteen years leading SEO programs for more than fifty businesses in regulated markets, Trifon Boyukliyski has built deep expertise in iGaming SEO, affiliate marketing, and entrepreneurship. His approach focuses on turning search visibility into revenue by making websites simple, fast, and aligned with what users are actively seeking—all while maintaining strict compliance with regulatory requirements.

What sets Boyukliyski apart is his metrics-driven methodology specifically designed for iGaming performance. He tracks key indicators including first-time depositors per thousand sessions, deposit rate per indexed page, and payback by cluster—ensuring growth remains compliant, predictable, and profitable. This data-focused framework allows him to optimize for business outcomes rather than vanity metrics, directly connecting SEO efforts to revenue generation. It's always a pleasure to meet Trifon in various SEO and Igaming summits in Europe and abroad and discuss about different business cases.

His philosophy centers on building lasting trust through authentic relationships and content that genuinely helps users. In heavily regulated markets where compliance mistakes can be costly, Boyukliyski demonstrates how SEO can respect legal boundaries while still driving significant results. For businesses navigating the complex intersection of search optimization and regulatory compliance in iGaming, his experience provides both strategic direction and practical execution knowledge.

19. Georgi Todorov

Through Create & Grow, Georgi Todorov has built a results-driven link-building agency that helps businesses increase authority and organic visibility through ethical outreach and measurable outcomes. His focus on transparency and consistent delivery has made Create & Grow known for sustainable SEO growth that compounds over time.

I've connected with Georgi through various SEO communities and conferences over the years, and his approach to link building stands out for its integrity—he prioritizes quality partnerships and genuine value exchange over shortcuts. His agency demonstrates how link building can be both scalable and ethical, proving that sustainable SEO growth comes from building real relationships rather than manipulating systems.

What makes Georgi's work particularly valuable is his commitment to measurable results and data-driven decision-making. Rather than focusing on vanity metrics, he tracks the outcomes that actually move businesses forward—domain authority improvements that translate to better rankings, and backlink portfolios that strengthen over time. His methodology shows that ethical SEO and business results aren't mutually exclusive; they're actually interdependent when executed properly.

20. Leo Soulas

As founder of Keyword Cupid and co-founder of Signal Boy, Leo Soulas has built two innovative SEO tools that are reshaping how marketers approach keyword clustering and viral visibility strategies. His products stand out for combining data science precision with creative execution, positioning him as one of the most forward-thinking minds in SEO automation.

I've followed Leo's work closely through various SEO communities and have been impressed by how he approaches tool development—not just building features, but solving actual workflow problems that SEO professionals face daily. Keyword Cupid's clustering methodology changed how many of us think about content organization, while Signal Boy addresses the growing need to understand and leverage viral signals in content strategy.

What makes Leo's contribution particularly valuable is his understanding that modern SEO requires both analytical rigor and creative thinking. His tools don't just process data—they help marketers identify opportunities that might otherwise remain hidden in spreadsheets. By automating the heavy lifting while preserving strategic decision-making, his products demonstrate where SEO technology is heading: smart systems that amplify human expertise rather than replace it. His work represents the kind of innovation that moves the entire industry forward.

21. Matt Diggity

Through Diggity Media and The Search Initiative, Matt Diggity has built two companies laser-focused on high-performance SEO and affiliate growth that have generated millions in traffic and revenue. His data-driven approach to ranking strategy and scalable SEO execution has established him as a global authority whose frameworks and case studies influence how thousands of SEO professionals approach optimization.

I've seen Matt speak at several international SEO conferences over the years, and his presentations always stand out for their depth and transparency. Unlike many speakers who stay surface-level, he shares actual data, testing methodologies, and results—often revealing strategies most consultants would keep proprietary. His willingness to test controversial tactics and share what actually works (and what doesn't) has made him one of the most respected voices in technical SEO.

What makes Matt's work particularly valuable is his commitment to systematic testing and proof over theory. He doesn't just teach SEO principles—he runs controlled experiments, measures outcomes, and adjusts strategies based on evidence. His approach demonstrates that sustainable SEO success comes from understanding why tactics work, not just copying what's currently trending. For anyone serious about mastering technical SEO and building scalable organic growth systems, following his work provides both strategic frameworks and execution-level insights that translate directly to better rankings and revenue.

22. Koray Tugberk GUBUR

As founder of Holistic SEO, Koray Tuğberk Gübür has pioneered data-driven SEO consultancy that fundamentally changed how the industry thinks about content organization. His introduction of "Topical Authority Maps" provided a framework that reshaped how brands structure content ecosystems—moving beyond simple keyword targeting to semantic relationships and topical depth.

I've been following Koray's work for years, and his research has directly influenced how I approach content strategy for international clients. His deep dives into semantic SEO, entity-based optimization, and knowledge graphs go far beyond typical SEO advice—he's essentially teaching how search engines actually understand content at an algorithmic level. When you read his analysis, you're not getting surface-level tactics; you're learning how Google's natural language processing systems interpret topical relevance and authority.

What makes Koray's contribution particularly valuable is his ability to bridge academic research with practical SEO execution. He doesn't just theorize about semantic relationships—he builds frameworks that agencies and in-house teams can implement. His Topical Authority Maps concept has become essential reading for anyone doing content planning at scale, proving that the future of SEO lies in understanding how topics interconnect rather than just optimizing individual pages. For technical SEO professionals looking to master semantic search and information retrieval principles, his work is indispensable.

23. Fery Kaszoni

Through Search Intelligence, Fery Kaszoni has built a digital PR agency that secures global media coverage through data-driven campaigns, consistently earning links from top-tier publications. His systematic approach has made PR measurable and predictable—transforming it from creative guesswork into a strategic growth channel with trackable ROI.

I had the privilege of hosting Fery as a speaker at the SEO Athens Summit, where he shared his data-driven PR methodologies with our community. His presentation stood out for its practical frameworks—showing exactly how to identify newsworthy angles, pitch to journalists effectively, and earn authoritative backlinks from major publications. What impressed me most was his transparency about what works and what doesn't, backed by real campaign data rather than theoretical best practices.

Fery's expertise lies in combining journalistic instincts with SEO strategy. He understands that earning links from major publications requires creating genuinely newsworthy content that serves journalists' needs, not just pitching for backlinks. His campaigns demonstrate how digital PR can deliver both brand visibility and SEO value simultaneously—proving that quality media coverage naturally attracts the kinds of authoritative links that move rankings. For anyone looking to scale link building through earned media rather than outreach alone, his methodologies provide a blueprint for turning PR into a measurable growth engine.

24. Patrick Rice

Through his YouTube channel and PatrickRiceCo.com, Patrick Rice has built a reputation for teaching data-driven SEO strategies that help marketers rank and grow their client base. His ability to break complex technical concepts into simple, actionable lessons has earned him a loyal following of SEO professionals who appreciate clarity over jargon.

I've found Patrick's YouTube content particularly valuable for its no-nonsense approach to SEO education. While many YouTube channels stay surface-level or chase trends, his videos dive into actual implementation—showing the step-by-step process for executing strategies rather than just explaining concepts. His teaching style reminds me why transparency matters in the SEO community: when you show people exactly how to do something and explain why it works, you build trust and help the entire industry level up.

What makes Patrick's contribution especially impactful is his focus on scalability and client results. He doesn't just teach how to rank one website—he shares frameworks for building repeatable processes that work across multiple clients and industries. His content addresses the real challenges agency owners and consultants face: how to deliver consistent results, communicate value to clients, and build systems that don't require you to manually execute every task. For SEO professionals looking to transition from tactician to strategist, his practical guidance provides a roadmap for sustainable growth.

25. Jamie IF

As founder of AffiliateFinder.ai and Endorsely, and co-owner of Answer Socrates, Jamie I.F. has built multiple solutions that bridge AI technology with affiliate marketing and SEO workflows. This British entrepreneur and international speaker specializes in AI applications for affiliate and influencer marketing, while consulting some of the world's largest brands on AI visibility and affiliate program growth.

I've been following Jamie's work in AI and SEO for a while now, particularly his insights on Reddit marketing and how AI is transforming search visibility strategies. His ability to see where the industry is heading—specifically around AI-powered search and affiliate attribution—has been invaluable for understanding how SEO professionals need to adapt their strategies. Answer Socrates, which he co-owns, has become a go-to free tool in many SEO workflows for keyword research, showing his commitment to making powerful tools accessible to the community.

What makes Jamie's expertise particularly relevant right now is his focus on AI visibility—not just optimizing for traditional search engines, but understanding how brands appear in AI-generated responses across ChatGPT, Claude, and other platforms. As someone recognized as one of the world's top experts in AI in SEO and Reddit marketing, he's helping brands navigate the shift from keyword-based search to conversational AI discovery. His work on affiliate program growth demonstrates how AI can scale partnerships and tracking in ways that were previously manual and time-consuming. For anyone looking to future-proof their SEO and affiliate strategies, Jamie's insights on AI integration provide both strategic direction and practical implementation frameworks.

26. Charles Floate

Based in Thailand but originally from the UK, Charles Floate has built a reputation as an SEO entrepreneur and investor who tests the boundaries of what's possible in search optimization. His expertise spans AI implementation, link building strategies, and SaaS development—with a particular focus on aggressive tactics that many in the industry discuss privately but few document publicly.

I've followed Charles's work through various SEO communities and conferences over the years, and what stands out is his transparency about testing edge-case strategies that push algorithmic limits. While the industry often labels certain approaches as "black hat," his willingness to experiment, document results, and share findings—both successes and failures—provides valuable insights into how search algorithms actually function under stress. His approach isn't about reckless manipulation; it's about understanding where boundaries exist and what Google's systems can and cannot detect.

Charles's investment in SaaS tools and his focus on AI-driven SEO automation demonstrate his understanding that modern search optimization requires both strategic thinking and technological leverage. His Thailand base gives him a unique perspective on international SEO and digital entrepreneurship, operating outside traditional Western agency structures while serving global clients. For SEO professionals interested in understanding the full spectrum of optimization techniques—including those that test conventional boundaries—his experiments and insights offer lessons that textbook-compliant strategies often miss. His work reminds us that understanding the rules requires knowing where they bend.

27. Nikola Baldikov

Through SERPsGrowth and Inbound Blogging, Nikola Baldikov has built a link-building and Digital PR agency that helps brands grow their online visibility through strategic outreach and content amplification. With over a decade of experience, he specializes in helping SaaS brands scale organic traffic and authority by securing high-quality backlinks from relevant publications and industry websites.

I've connected with Nikola through various SEO communities over the years, and his approach to link building stands out for its focus on genuine relationship-building rather than transactional outreach. His methodology combines traditional PR principles with modern SEO tactics, ensuring that the links his agency secures don't just pass authority—they also drive referral traffic and brand awareness. This dual focus on SEO metrics and business outcomes makes his work particularly valuable for SaaS companies that need sustainable growth strategies.

What makes Nikola's expertise especially relevant for SaaS brands is his understanding of the longer sales cycles and educational content requirements in B2B software. He knows that effective link building in this space requires thought leadership content, data-driven insights, and strategic placement in publications where decision-makers actually spend time. His agency's specialization in this vertical means he's developed repeatable frameworks for securing coverage that moves the needle on both rankings and revenue. For SaaS founders and marketing teams looking to build authority in competitive markets, his strategic outreach methodology provides a proven path to earning the kind of backlinks that compound over time.

28. George Blandford

As Co-Director at UK Linkology, George Blandford leads a UK-based link-building agency that specializes in strategic outreach across all niches and budgets. He co-developed the firm's innovative "M-Flux" link-assessment formula, a proprietary methodology that evaluates link quality and potential impact—helping transform link building from an art into a measurable science.

I've followed UK Linkology's growth over the years and have been particularly impressed by how George and his team approach link building with systematic rigor. The M-Flux formula represents exactly the kind of innovation the industry needs—a way to assess and predict link value before investment, removing much of the guesswork that plagues traditional outreach campaigns. His work demonstrates that when you can measure and quantify what makes a quality link, you can build repeatable processes that scale profitably.

What makes George's contribution particularly valuable is his success in turning these methodologies into substantial business growth for UK Linkology. By creating frameworks that work across diverse niches and budget levels, he's proven that strategic link building isn't just for enterprise clients with unlimited budgets. His approach shows that with the right assessment criteria and systematic execution, agencies can deliver consistent results whether they're working with local businesses or international brands. For agencies looking to build scalable link-building operations—or clients seeking partners who treat outreach as a measurable growth channel rather than a volume game—George's work at UK Linkology provides a model worth studying.

29. Milosz Krasinski

Through Chilli Fruit Web Consulting, Milosz Krasiński has positioned himself at the forefront of AI visibility and Digital PR—two disciplines that are rapidly converging as search evolves beyond traditional keyword-based algorithms. He specializes in optimizing content for LLM visibility and AI-powered search results like Google's AI Overviews, while connecting AI tools with practical link-building strategies that work in this new landscape.

I've been following Milosz's work closely as AI transforms how content gets discovered and ranked, and his insights have been instrumental in understanding how to adapt SEO strategies for 2026. While many in the industry are still figuring out how to approach generative AI optimization, he's already implementing frameworks that bridge traditional Digital PR with AI visibility tactics. His approach to connecting AI tools with link building demonstrates a practical understanding that the fundamentals of authority-building still matter—they just need to be executed with AI discovery in mind.

What makes Milosz's expertise particularly timely is his focus on helping brands adapt to how AI is fundamentally changing SEO. As Google's AI Overviews, ChatGPT, Claude, and other AI systems become primary discovery channels, the old playbooks need updating. His work shows how to optimize content so it gets cited by LLMs, appears in AI-generated summaries, and maintains visibility across both traditional search and conversational AI platforms. For brands trying to navigate this transition without abandoning everything that worked before, his practical frameworks provide a bridge between proven SEO principles and emerging AI-powered search behaviors. His combination of Digital PR expertise with AI optimization makes him essential reading for anyone serious about future-proofing their search strategy.